

At one point or another, all producers face some level of price risk at the hands of unpredictable commodity market fluctuations. The challenge for you is to decide the business risks you are willing to accept and the ones you wish to reduce or remove utilizing price risk management tools. A strategic marketing program does not attempt to eliminate all risk – it attempts to transform unacceptable price risks into an acceptable form.

With decades of experience in price risk management, and staff in key agricultural producing regions around the world, INTL FCStone provides expert guidance, insights, and data solutions to individual farm businesses - to make educated risk management and marketing decisions across grains/oilseeds, dairy, livestock and more.

As a Farm Bureau member, you will have access to these exclusive discounts on INTL FCStone's high-touch and personalized risk management services:
